

ABSTRACT

Camera With User Identity Data

- 5 A camera is provided with user-input means for setting a current-user data item stored in the camera to indicate the user ID of a current user, this current-user data item being changeable by subsequent users to indicate their own respective user IDs. Upon an image recording being taken with the camera, the user ID currently indicated by the current-user data item. is associated with that image recording.